Our Process

Consagous processes an effective way of website development which can be described in different steps:

1.

Analysis:

Based on the information Client provided when requesting their website designing quote, we attempt to determine client's needs, what client is expecting from their website, and try to get a feel for their industry.

2. Design:

Drawing from the information gathered up to this point, it's time to determine the look and feel of client's site.

Our web designer will create one or more prototype designs for Client's web site. This is typically a .jpg image of what the final design will look like. Often time's clients will be sent an email with the mock-ups for their web site.

In this phase, communication between both client and our designer is crucial to ensure that the final web site will match client's needs and taste. It is important that client work closely with our designer, exchanging ideas, until they arrive at the final design for their web site.

3. Development:

The developmental stage is the point where the web site itself is created. At this time, our web designer will take all of the individual graphic elements from the prototype and use them to create the actual, functional site.

This is typically done by first developing the home page, followed by a “shell” for the interior pages. Once the shell has been created, our designer will take client’s content and distribute it throughout the site, in the appropriate areas.

This entire time, our designer should continue to make in-progress web site available to client for viewing, so that they can suggest any additional changes or corrections to have done.

4. Debugging:

At this point, our web designer will attend to the final details and test web site. They will test things such as the complete functionality of forms or other scripts, as well last testing for last minute compatibility issues (viewing differences between different web browsers), ensuring that client’s web site is optimized to be viewed properly in the most recent browser versions.

5. Deployment:

Once client give our web designer final approval, it is time to deliver the site. An FTP (File Transfer Protocol) program is used to upload the web site files to your server. Once these accounts have been setup, and web site uploaded to the server, the site should be put through one last run-through. This is just precautionary, to confirm that all files have been uploaded correctly, and that the site continues to be fully functional.

This marks the official launch of client’s site, as it is now viewable to the public.
